

Gender equality is one of 17 SDGs'. it is no:5 but with the sustainable forestry, it can collaborate and influence to 6 other goals directly

Brief about our project partnered with IRIM to have the first environmental sectoral and forest sector gender strategy assessment

A survey conducted by National Human Rights Council found that 70% of the employers surveyed had no prohibition of sexual harassment, and those that did had no procedures for handling a sexual harassment complaint. But in GIZ, we take this seriously. We do not tolerate any form of sexual harassment in the company. This is not a problem that affect women. Men also face. GIZ works closely with the Compliance and Integrity Corporate Unit, the AGG complaints committee and COPE. If you face it and do not know or not sure about what you should do, follow this guidance: What can you do? Step by step guide :)

A sad picture. Due to legal and cultural barriers many women do not have economic opportunity. Some countries, they cannot even get any financial service without a male accompany. So what does GIZ do to battle with this global issue? I will tell you one example. One of our project in Pakistan is Competency based training for women. The project prepares skilled women in order to break the socioeconomic barrier. Case of Ayesha Safdar, a 23 years old dressmaker from Lahore

Women in most countries face legal barriers that restrict their economic opportunity

According to UNESCO, only 30% of the researchers are women. How does GIZ encourage female researchers?
